

Fijian Languages: An Overview

Paul Geraghty
(University of the South Pacific)

In this talk I will outline the origin and development of the diversity of the indigenous languages of Fiji, touching also on their relationship to other Austronesian and Oceanic languages and their relevance to the study of prehistory. Then I will sketch the history of the study of these languages, and conclude with remarks on their current vitality and viability.